

INDO-CHINA

the colony was now thoroughly To the declarations, and to calm public opinion, the of the military, the civil government to filter In the colony. When the statistics of the — to the public, there was an outbreak of the army. If the soldiers fell in ambush it the of officers* who stirred up trouble just to win promotion.
Fundamentally it was the fault of a the dragged on as it did. The govern-to soldiers at one time, so only inadequate through, and they had to be prematurely to opinion.
The reporters out by the Parisian papers were naturally the public with exciting stories than in ferret-ing out the truthful dull facts. They were to a man discouraging the colony and its treacherous people. Their French
the erotic elements in their accounts, but these of colonial problems required more study die or reader was willing to make. It was not the of manner that official journalism was in to with accuracy.
In the of designed to encourage faith in the colony, were a few outstanding writers whose die Colonel Bernard was a pioneer in this He out prosperity existed in the colony of control, MM! that, all told, the country a an commerce, and a Two in the dfe Paris (1901) made Bernard^{1*} Dotinier a blow from which he never re-
His by BeaB Ms

entourage on WQr out to the to CD tangible effect.
 Jung's the of the took the promise of aid m to eactraDter his obtacles ia the of the adnunistratioo. Jean Ajalbert was by far the erf Jcwmaiste, and he was the to the Indochina's reaction to Japan^{1*} Use of his five years* resilience ia the one ia am series of and novels, pubHc Interest was of hfe